Culture of Haryana

Haryana has been a witness to a lot of hoary traditions and customs. It has emerged through the ravages of times and has still managed to hold on to many of its traditions - Some good and some not so good. The natives of Haryana have always cherished a basic lifestyles with very frugal needs. Hence, it is in a state of perpetual conflict between hoary traditions and modern evolution.

The people of Haryana strictly adhere to their customs and cultural traditions. One such traditional is of meditation. Yoga and chanting of Vedic mantras have become an innate part of their lifestyle. The dialect of Haryana, popularly known as Haryanvi, Bangaru or Jatu, is known to be a bit crude but is full of earthy humour and straight forwardness.

Most of the people of Haryana have more or less equal social status. The factor of age is a really dominating trait in Haryana, as all elders, whether rich or poor are treated with almost respect and honour. Thus, it displays a very socialist nature. In some parts of the state, economic status of an individual is also determined by the number of cattle he owns!

People here tend to retain their racial purity by not allowing marriages in the same gotra. widow Remarriages are also not encouraged and it is hence a very big obligation to the country.

Apart from all the vibrant and healthy customs of Haryana, there are a lot of practices here which needs amendment at the earliest. The major among them are the denial of education to the girl child, female infanticide or practice of the purdah.

Haryana's culture is reflective of this colourful state. Submerged in the rich cultural heritage of Vedic Period, the mystical state of Haryana stands out from the crowd. characterised by the hookahs and the charpoys, the vivid fairs and the swaying paddy fields; Haryana is one of the most economically developed regions in south Asia. Popularly known as "The Home of God", Haryana shares its borders with Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh and Delhi. The vibrant state has a bountiful culture, heritage, festivals, folklores and the vibrant landscape.

Like any other region of India, Haryana also has its traditional form of dance and which is quite popular among people from all over the globe. The famous traditional dance forms include Ghoomar, Gangaur and Khoria dance. The ancient folk music of Haryana is mainly of two types - classical and country side. Classical form belongs to the great legends while country side music includes songs with varied ragas, sung in Hindustani style. These ragas, sung in Hindustani style of music. Also, different types of musical instruments like Dholak, Drum, Matka, Harmonium, Damru, Shehnai, Manjri, Sarangi, Taasha and Ghunguru, etc. are playing during the singing and dancing festivals.

The handicraft manufacturers in Haryana offer a variety of arts and crafts including pottery making, exquisite furniture and woodcarving, handlooms, are the shawls and durries. Haryana shawls are very well-known because of the phulkari, which has a great demand for its rich embroidery all over the globe. The phulkari are worn by the women of Haryana with their ghagra and choli during the winters. Another type of shawl very similar to the phulkaris is the Bagh. Intricate embroidery is the main feature of this branch of Handlooms. Almost the entire base cloth is covered with embroidery in the Bagh styled shawls.

Haryana Arts and crafts are one of the major mode of income for the rural people of the state. Thus they play an important role in governing the country of the state of Haryana.

Traditional Dress

The vibrancy of the people of Haryana is quite evident in their lifestyle too. Their simplicity and spirited enthusiasm find expression in their way of dressing up. Women of Haryana show a special affinity towards colours. Their basic trousseau includes Daaman, Kurti & Chundri. 'Chundri' is a long coloured piece of cloth, decorated with shiny laces and motifs, and is meant to cover the head. 'Kurti' is a shirt like a blouse. The 'Daaman' is the flaring ankle-long skirt, in striking vibrant colours.

The men generally wear 'Dhoti', the wraparound cloth, tucked in between the legs with a white - coloured kurta worn on top of it. 'Pagri' is the traditional headgear for men, which is now worn mainly by the old villagers. All - white attire is a status symbol for men.

The culture of Haryana dates back to the Vedic times and the natives are known for their rich cultural society, the state has its own social belief's and practices. Despite the influences from the Mughals and then the British, its ancient heritage and continues to be the flag bearer of Haryana has retained its ancient heritage and continues to be the flag of its traditions. From its ancient art forms to their traditional clothing and earthy lifestyle, we have a lot to gain from this enriching society.

Art and Craft

Art and craft of Haryana comprise of the various forms of dance, music, pottery, embroidery, painting, weaving, sculpting, etc. The speciality is the very popular village handicrafts. Apart from being the major source of income of the craftsmen, these art forms are a super hit among tourists. The hues of pottery, the moulds of clay, the shimmer of handicrafts, the beads of terracotta; all combine to display the creative imagination of thousands of artists. Panipat in Haryana is famous for its handloom tradition, especially rugs and upholstery fabric that is the reason why it is known as a major textile town in India.

Festivals

The State of Haryana celebrates the rich, glorious culture of India in its various fairs and festivals that are celebrated with equal pomp and gaiety here as all over the country. There are several fairs and festivals in Haryana that attract a large number of visitors to the State at different times of the year. These festivals are occasions of celebration, fun and frolic when the entire state of Haryana bustles with life.

Perhaps the major and most popular fair in Haryana is the Swajkund crafts Mela that is held in the month of February. The fortnight long fair takes place every year from 1st - 15th February. The fair provides one of the best platforms to local artisans and craftsmen from all over India to showcase their products to a large audience that arrives to witness this important annual event. Swajkund crafts Mela is truly the largest exhibition of local crafts in India that allows numerous talented craftsmen in the country to bring to the fore their unique hand-made products and offerings.

Some of the other festivals in Haryana that are celebrated in the state with much fervor are Lohri (3rd January), Baisakhi (13th April), Teej, Saaghi, Kurukshttra festival in Haryana (May-June) and Mango Mela festival (May-June).

Pinjore Heritage Festival

Pinjore in Haryana plays host to the Pinjore Heritage festival, a yearly fair that offers one a chance to get a sneak- peak into the rich heritage, gardens of Pinjore as well as its promotion in the form of a potential tourist destination. Pinjore is an ancient town.

This annual event is managed by the Haryana Tourism Department and other chief state bodies. The celebrations of the Pinjore festival started in 2006. Each year, Yadavindra Garden, which is famed as one of the oldest as well as the most well maintained Mughal garden's around the globe is the festival's venue. The garden has an interesting 7-descending level of arrangement and after being established by the Mughal rulers, it has been taken care of by the rulers of Himachal Pradesh, the royal house of Patiala and the Gorkhas and now by the Haryana Tourism department.

Haryana Day

In April 1966, the Indian government set up the Shah commission to review the existing state of Punjab and determine the boundaries of the new state of Haryana by considering the language spoken by the local people. The commission delivered its recommendations at the end of May 1966 and Haryana state was created on 1 November 1966. During the Haryana Festival, there are cycle rallies as well as a rally cum race that is held from Chandigarh to Panchkula town. All people and cycle riders participate enthusiastically and there is cheer and rejoicing on the streets all over the state. The day of the Haryana Day festival also marks the Pankewan Pratiyogita, the food festival that is held at that time, at the tourist complexes. There are also blood donation camps and other fun fair events at the Haryana Festival. To add more enjoyment to the Haryana, there are musical performances in the evenings that are held almost in all complexes in Haryana. There are also various kinds of contests held to add some flavor to the Haryana Day. People participate actively and enthusiastically in the contests, races and other methods of celebrations.

Fairs

Along with the mesmerising architecture and numerous tourist attractions, Haryana has gained a lot of fame for the lively fairs organised there. The most acclaimed of these are —

Mango Mela

Organised in the months of June and July at 'Yadvindra Gardens' of Panchkula, this mela is a great treat for the mango lovers. The mango Mela does not only quenches the people's desires it is of the different variety of mangoes but also offers a forum to support the farmers to sell their mangoes and teach them about the latest technology to raise their mango production.

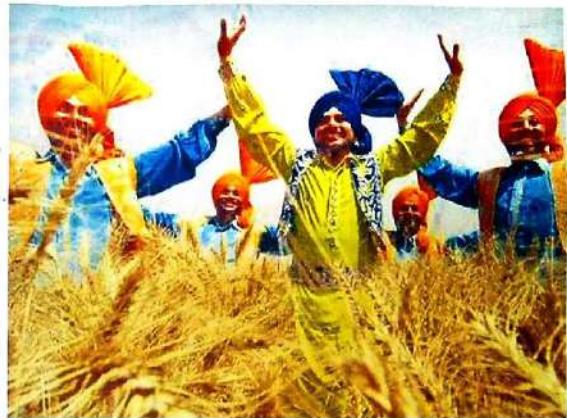

Baisakhi Mela

Baisakhi is also known as Vaisakhi, Vaisakhi, or Vasakhi is a historical and religious festival in Hinduism and Sikhism. It is traditionally observed on 13 or 14 April, every year, which commemorates the formation of Khalsa panth of warriors under Guru Gobind Singh in 1699.

According to the Khalsa Sambat, the Khalsa calendar starts with the creation of the Khalsa, which is 1 Vaisakhi 1756 Bikrami (30 March) 699. Accordingly, Vaisakhi has been the traditional Sikh new year. The alternative Nanakshahi calendar begins its year a month earlier on 1 Chait which generally falls on 14 March and begins with the birth year of the Guru Nanak Dev in 1469.

On Baisakhi, Gurdwaras are decorated and held kirtans, Sikhs visit and bathe in lakes or rivers before visiting local Gurdwaras, community fairs and Nagar Kirtan processions are held, and people gather to socialize and share festive foods.

Haryana Tourism is organizing and hosting the much awaited Baisakhi Mela at Pinjore Gardens. It is not only in the villages of Punjab and Haryana that the colourful Vaisakhi mela has gained popularity but they are also equally popular in big cities. There is also Sikh diaspora across the globe in various countries, which has made helped make Baisakhi melas popular abroad as well.

Surajkund Mela

Surajkund meaning 'Lake of the Sun' is an ancient reservoir that was built by King Suraj Pal of the Tomar dynasty in the 10th century.
