

The students of the Banarasidas Chandiwala Institute of Hotel Management and Catering Technology arranged an event on August 14th, 2023, focusing on the theme of "Best Out of Waste." This initiative aimed to champion resource sustainability and witnessed enthusiastic participation from first-year students who exhibited their creativity by crafting innovative items from discarded materials like newspapers, CDs, and pistachio shells.

The event garnered the admiration of judges who were genuinely impressed by the students' inventive concepts. Certificates were duly presented upon the winners, acknowledging their talent in transforming waste into valuable assets. Beyond the competitive aspect, this event effectively heightened awareness among students about the pressing importance of resource management. "Best out of waste" emerged as an approach that not only curbs waste generation but also fosters creativity and resourcefulness among the youth.

This event drew inspiration from Sikkim's sustainability policy, an Indian north eastern state renowned for its sustainable resource management practices. Sikkim stands as an exemplar of dedication to sustainable development and resource utilization. Through their participation, the students gained profound insights into Sikkim's sustainability policy, motivating them to collaborate as a team and create innovative products, all while adhering to waste management principles.

In essence, the event at Banarasidas Chandiwala Institute not only celebrated the inherent creative potential in waste but also instilled a sense of responsibility for a greener and more innovative future. It demonstrated how the principles of sustainability, epitomized by Sikkim, can inspire and empower the younger generation to become custodians of our environment, simultaneously curbing waste and nurturing creativity.
