Water storage system in Uttarakhand

From the very beginning of our civilisation, Indians have made intimate connection with water, not for just survival but also religiously, culturally, spiritually and aesthetically. India's incredible water heritage: Naule- Dhare is the water lifeline of Uttarakhand.

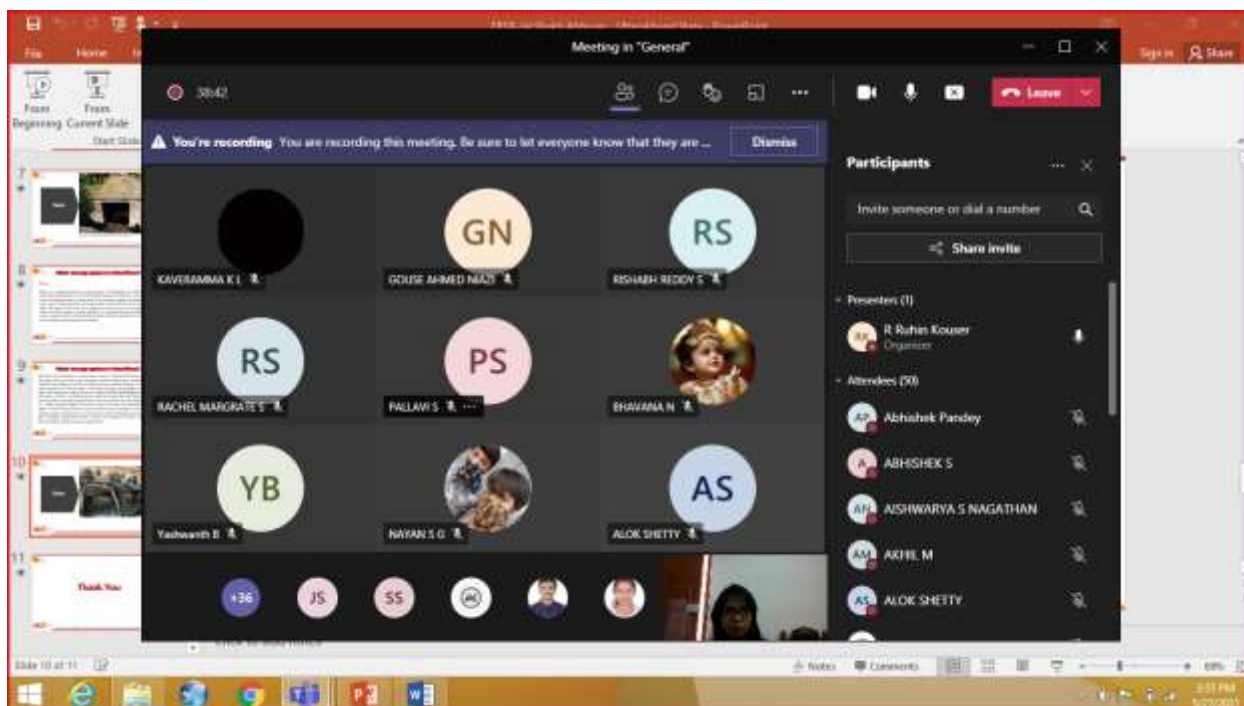

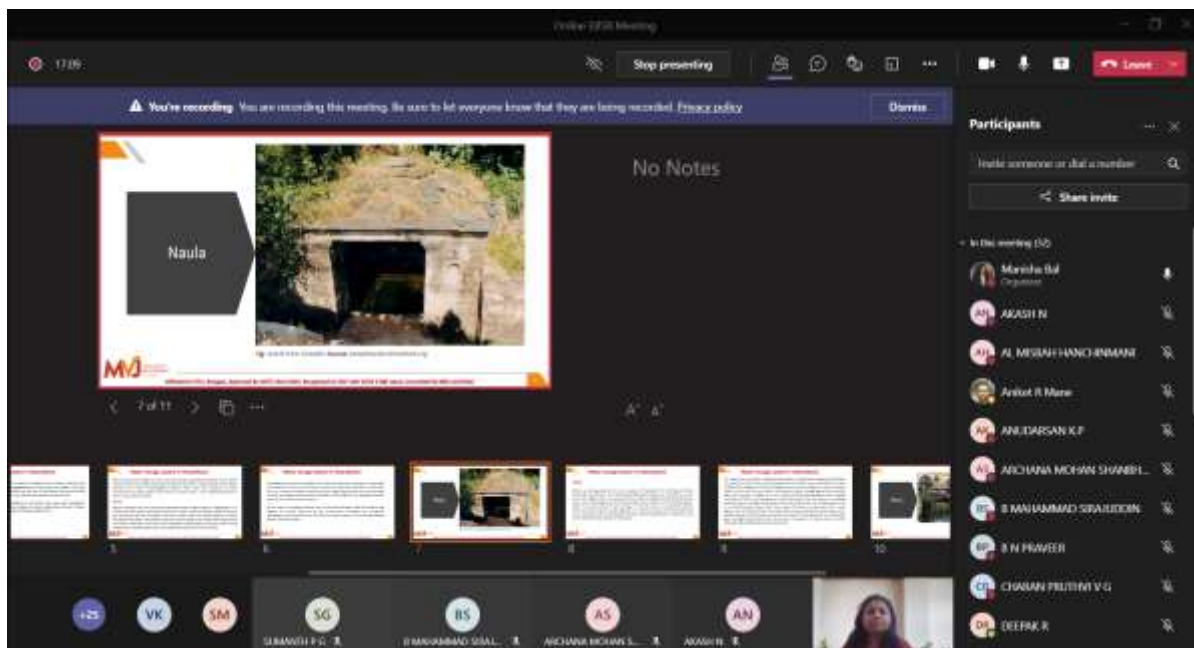

Naula, Dhara and many more traditional techniques tells the story of Indian water heritage in all its diversity. It reveals the technical ingenuity that water heritage has always inspired, and it presents the challenges that this heritage Naula, Dhara faces, along with possible solutions of water crisis in uttrakhand.

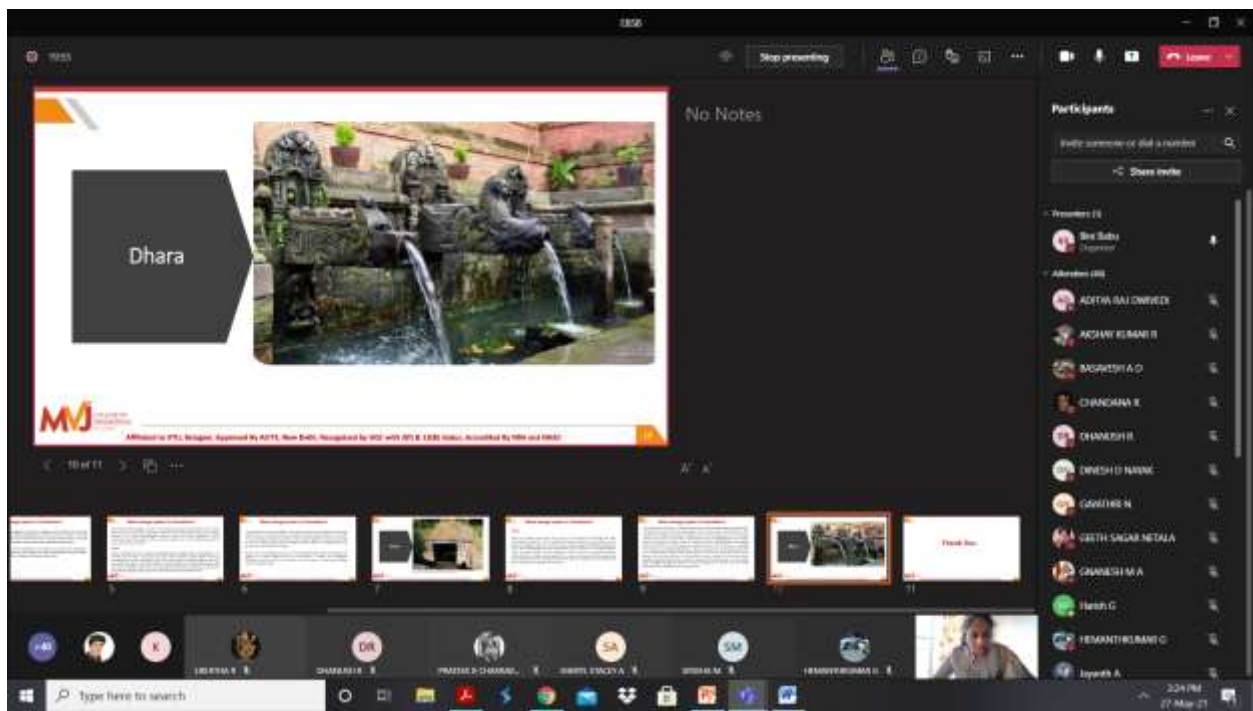

The main purpose of this awareness session is to credibly present the importance and value of heritage Naula, Dhara and their historical experience sustainable development, and vice versa, present the importance of water management for the protection of heritage.
