

Workshop Dated: 03.10.2019

A One-day multi-disciplinary national workshop on “Research writing”

The Department of English organised a “One-day multi-disciplinary national workshop on Research Writing” on 03.10.2019. The resource person Mr. Victor Ikechukwu Agughasi, Assistant Professor, Department of Computer Science & Engineering, Maharaja Institute of Technology, Mysore, spoke on the importance of doing research in all disciplines of study. He elaborated the research writing processes and suggested the participants to pay attention to what they read, the methods and methodology in research, how to support one’s claim in research, how to organise an argument with the help of literature review. He explained the qualitative and quantitative data collection, and the methods to arrive results, discussions and conclusions. The most important factors in writing a research, i.e. plagiarism and academic integrity, flaws and fallacies in academic writing and the importance of editing and proof reading were also discussed. He concluded his speech by listing out the importance of publishing articles in UGC journals classified under CARE. Nearly, 560 students from colleges in and around Salem district and universities participated and got energized with new ideas and expertises